Introductory.

The preparation of this little work was begun about five years ago, but for several reasons appears in print now for the first time.

It was expected that it would be produced in pamphlet form about May 1, 1906. The manuscript was in the hands of the printer at the time of the great disaster in San Francisco and was lost in the fire, thus necessitating reproduction from original materials. By September, 1906, the whole had been rewritten and was ready for publication, but the illness and death of the originator of the plan made it inadvisable to publish it at that time. Since then it has been brought up to date as nearly as could be done with the information at hand. It is almost certain, however, that changes have taken place of which we have not heard. The work will necessarily be incorrect to that extent.

This work owes its origin to the interest and efforts of the late Benjamin Dore, of Fresno, California. The original idea suggested itself to him after returning to California from a trip through the New England States. He became convinced that the systematic compilation of our present knowledge of the Dore family would be interesting and instructive to members of the present generation and considerably more so to those of future generations. With this object in view he sent out circular letters to those whom he thought would be able to furnish information. A number of replies were received. About June, 1904, the undersigned undertook the task of compiling the data on hand and of securing as much more as was possible. The result of our united labors is now submitted to you.

It was one of Benjamin Dore's fondest wishes to see the pamphlet published and distributed to those interested. The destruction of the manuscript, previously alluded to, was a bitter disappointment to him, for he was even then stricken with a fatal illness. The appearance of the work at the present time is in accordance with his wishes, and any pleasure or interest which the reading of it may cause is to be ascribed to his efforts. The pamphlet is published by his children.

It has been the aim of those interested to make the history as complete as possible. This has been a difficult task, and, owing in no small degree to the lack of co-operation of some members of the family, a great deal of obtainable matter has not found its way into the work. The author will welcome any corrections or additions which may serve perhaps to aid in the production of a more complete record at some time in the future.

In conclusion, the author desires to thank all who have in any way contributed toward our knowledge of the Dore family. He especially wishes to acknowledge the value of information supplied by Mrs. W. F. Smith, of Hartland, Maine, and to hope that this little book may prove of some value to those it most closely touches.

Early History of the Dore Family in America

Very little is known concerning the early history of the Dore family. From what we do know, it seems probable that two Dore brothers were the ancestors of most of the Dore families in America. These brothers, who were French Huguenots, settled in Maine in the early days. It is possible that they settled in what is now the town of Athens, for it is there that the earliest members of the family of which we have any actual knowledge lived. There is in that town a hill called Dore Hill, which has been the home of the Dore family for at least five generations, and which, according to our best knowledge, may properly be regarded as the original home of the Dore family in America.

The name Dore is of French origin and was originally Doré. The accent was dropped by those who settled in America. The name has been changed to Dorr in some branches of the family.

The earliest ancestor of whom we have any definite knowledge is Joseph Dore. He probably lived in what afterwards became the town of Athens in Maine. He had six children. Of these we have records of the descendants of one only.

His oldest son, Samuel Dore, was a farmer in Athens. It is with his descendants alone that this work is to deal, as it has been impossible to learn of those of the other children.

Our record of the family of Joseph Dore is as follows:

JOSEPH DORE, b. 1749.

PHOEBE LORD, b. 1750.

Married. Their children:

1. SAMUEL DORE
2. JOHN DORE.
3. PHOEBE DORE.
4. LYDIA DORE.
5. BETSY DORE.
6. HANNAH DORE.

SAMUEL DORE, b. 1776.
LYDIA CORSON, b. 1778.

Married 1794. Their children:

1. RICHARD DORE.
2. JOHN DORE.
3. SAMUEL DORE.
4. LEVI DORE.
5. CALEB DORE.
6. SILAS DORE.
7. PHOEBE DORE.
8. SALLY DORE.
9. BETSY DORE.
10. TRIPHENA DORE, twin to Betsy; died in infancy.
11. SUSAN DORE.

SAMUEL DORE'S children by a second marriage were:

12. ASA DORE.
13. His twin.
14. JOSEPH DORE.
15. GREENLEAF DORE.
16. LYDIA DORE.
17. CATHERINE DORE.
18. NANCY DORE.
19. HANNAH DORE.
20. TRIPHENA DORE.
21. ABIGAIL DORE.
22. MARY DORE.
23. MARTHA DORE, her twin.
24. JOSEPHINE DORE.

There were four other children in this family of whom we have no record.

Those members of Samuel Dore's family of whom we have records will be considered in detail in the above order.

I. RICHARD DORE.

We have but little information concerning the family of Richard Dore. He lived in Athens and was three times married: his first wife was Hannah Whittier; his second, Sally French; his third, Betsy Thompson. We know that he had one child, Julia Anne, who lived to the age of about forty years; she never married. There were other children, number unknown, who died in infancy.

II. JOHN DORE.

John Dore, the second son of Samuel Dore, was born in Athens, Maine, in 1801. His early life was spent upon his father's farm in Athens. In 1822 he was married to Sally Wing, by whom he had three children. His wife died in 1829. Two years later he married Elizabeth Stafford. He then moved to Harmony, Maine, and settled on a farm, where the children of the second family were born. In 1844 he lost his second wife, and married the following year Hannah Barnes. In 1850 the family moved to Princetown, Wisconsin, where they bought a farm. Here John Dore remained until his death in 1863. Three children were born to his third wife. Of these, the oldest was born in Harmony, Maine, and the others in Princetown.

After John Dore's death his widow went to Neillsville, Wisconsin, where she lived with John S. Dore, until 1883. She then moved to Minnesota, where she lived with her youngest son, Ruel A. Dore, until her death in 1888.

John Dore's family was as follows:

JOHN DORE, b. June 8, 1801; d. Apr. 6, 1863.

SALLY WING, b. Feb. 5, 1793; d. May 11, 1829.

Married Oct. 31, 1822. Their children:

1. ELVIRA DORE, b. Oct. 30, 1823; d. May 18, 1889.

2. BENJAMIN DORE, b. July 7, 1825; d. Sept. 30, 1906.

3. OBED DORE, b. June 4, 1828; d. Dec., 1898.

JOHN DORE.

ELIZABETH R. STAFFORD, b. May 14, 1807; d. Feb. 20, 1844.

Married Dec. 1, 1831. Their children:

4. MARY E. DORE, b. Dec. 28, 1833; d. Jan. 22, 1872.

5. ANNA M. DORE, b. June 2, 1837; d. Dec. 28, 1901.

6. JOHN S. DORE, b. Dec. 26, 1838.

7. ISAAC S. DORE, b. Dec. 21, 1842; d. Jan. 26, 1860.

JOHN DORE.

HANNAH BARNES, b. Apr. 19, 1817; d. Apr. 24, 1888.

Married. Their children:

8. EDWIN L. DORE, b. Dec. 2, 1848; d. June 5, 1882.

9. ALFRED W. DORE, b. Oct. 29, 1850; died.

10. RUEL A. DORE, b. Jan. 3, 1853.

I. ELVIRA DORE.

Elvira Horn Dore, the eldest child in John Dore's family, was born in Athens. Her youth was spent in Athens and Harmony. When about eighteen years of age she went to Bangor to live, and there she met and married William H. Wright. Later they moved to Portland, Maine, where they spent the remainder of their lives. William Wright died in 1872, and his wife followed him in 1889.

They left two daughters. The older one, Ella, married Ira S. Locke, a prominent attorney of Portland. They now reside in Woodfords, Maine.

The younger daughter, Fanny, was for five years a teacher in the high school at Portsmouth, New Hampshire. She afterwards became the bride of Dr. Joseph Boylston, a Portsmouth dentist. She died in Portsmouth in 1899. Her husband and her little daughter, Helen, still live in Portsmouth.

Elvira Dore's family record is as follows:

WILLIAM H. WRIGHT; d. Oct., 1872.

ELVIRA HORN DORE, b. Oct. 30, 1823; d. May 18, 1889.

Married in Bangor, Me. Their children:

1. ELLA PHEBE WRIGHT, b. Feb. 12, 1849, in Bangor.

2. FANNY DORE WRIGHT, b. Jan. 4, 1857, in Bangor; d. Feb. 10, 1899, in Portsmouth, N. H.

IRA S. LOCKE.

ELLA PHEBE WRIGHT.

Married.

JOSEPH BOYLSTON.

FANNY DORE WRIGHT.

Married in Portsmouth. Their child:

HELEN DORE BOYLSTON, b. Apr. 4, 1895.

2. BENJAMIN DORE.

Benjamin Dore was the second child and the eldest son of John Dore. When he was three years old his mother died, and he was placed in the care of his aunt, Sally Hathern, who lived in Solon, Maine. When his father remarried, he was taken to Harmony with the family, where he worked on the farm until he was nineteen years of age. He was then apprenticed to a carpenter to learn the trade. A year and a half later, he went to Bangor, where he continued his work as a carpenter.

In 1849, he became interested in the discoveries of wealth in California. He became one of a company of fifty-six men who bought a bark, the Cantero, in which they sailed for San Francisco with a cargo of lumber. On the voyage two stops were made of one week each. The first was St. Catherine on the coast of Brazil, the second at Valparaiso. They rounded Cape Horn, and after a voyage of six months arrived in San Francisco April 29, 1850.

The vessel and its cargo being disposed of, the company disbanded. Benjamin Dore then followed his trade in San Francisco for some months. He then went to Vancouver, Washington, where he worked upon the government barracks. Later he went to Portland, Oregon, where he helped reconstruct the sailing vessel Willamette. It was changed into a side-wheel steamer, and was the first steamboat to ply between Portland and Astoria. After finishing his work in Portland he returned to San Francisco.

In 1853 he entered the lumber business, which he successfully pursued for eleven years. In 1854 he married Jane Amanda Hall, daughter of Elijah Dewey Waters of Bennington, Vermont, and widow of Hiland H. Hall, Jr. They have had four children, of whom three are now living.

The resources of San Francisco in the early days were taxed to their utmost to deal with the large criminal element which thrived in its midst. The young municipal government was entirely inadequate to meet the emergency and the condition grew steadily worse. When it finally became almost intolerable a number of prominent citizens formed an organization known as the Vigilance Committee, which had for its object the establishment and maintenance of law and order. By means of a few wholesome examples of uncompromising justice, this organization succeeded in ridding San Francisco of its terrible curse. Benjamin Dore was an active member of the Vigilance Committee, and afterwards of the political party which followed up the committee's work with a most successful fight for good government.

In 1861 he was elected to the California State Legislature, where he served two terms. In 1865 he was Sergeant-at-Arms of the Assembly. In 1864 he became interested in mining. He continued in this work for sixteen years, to his heavy financial loss, however. He engaged in the printing business from 1873 to 1883. Both of his sons were associated with him in this work and remained printers for a number of years.

In 1883 he went to Fresno, California, and settled in West Park Colony. He was the first settler, ploughing the first furrow and building the first house in that district. After several years he took his wife and daughter to Fresno. Here his wife died in 1889 after an illness of two years.

Early in the year 1906 Benjamin Dore's health began to fail, and by August it became apparent to those about him that he was not to remain long. He passed away on the morning of September 30th at his Fresno home. The funeral services were held in San Francisco by Excelsior Lodge, No. 166, F. & A. M., of which he was a charter member.

Benjamin's Dore eldest son, Harry E. Dore, was born and raised in San Francisco. He learned the printing business in his father's office. In 1881 he was married to Anita Estelle Harrington. When Benjamin Dore left San Francisco his son went to Portland, Oregon, where he bought a printing-office. He was engaged in business there for twelve years. He then moved to Fresno, where he became associated with the Fresno Republican. In 1902 he left the printing business and has since been interested in paper. He is now connected with the Pacific Coast Paper Company of San Francisco. His residence is in Berkeley. His son, Walter H. Dore, graduated from the University of California in 1907. He is engaged in practical work in analytical chemistry. He lives with his father at Berkeley.

Frank E. Dore, the second son of Benjamin Dore, was born and raised in San Francisco. Like his brother, he learned the printer's trade in his father's office, and continued in that line of work. He was married in 1880 to Louise Vandor, of San Francisco. He worked in San Francisco for a number of years. He was with his brother in Portland for a time, but again returned to San Francisco, where he remained until a few years ago. As the printing business and the San Francisco climate disagreed with his health, he left them both and went to Fresno, where he has since lived. He is at present clerk of the Fresno Police Department.

Benjamin Dore's only daughter is Alice A. Dore. She was born and raised in San Francisco. She was educated in the public schools of San Francisco and graduated from the Girls' High School. She lived with her father in Fresno from 1888 until the time of his death. Since then she has lived with her brother, Harry E. Dore, in Berkeley.

Benjamin Dore's family record is as follows:

BENJAMIN DORE, b. July 7, 1825; d. Sept. 30, 1906, in Fresno, Cal.
JANE AMANDA WATERS HALL, b. Sept. 10, 1830, in Troy, N. Y.; d. Sept. 8, 1880, in Fresno.

2. ADDIE DORE.
3. VERA DORE.
4. WINNIE DORE.
5. MERVIN DORE.
6. HARRY ELMER DORE.

4. MARY DORE.

Mary E. Dore was born in Harmony, Maine. She was married to William A. Treat, in Brewer, Maine. In 1854 they emigrated to California. About a year later her husband died. She was again married to Rev. George B. Taylor, an Episcopalian minister of San Francisco. They had two children.

Mary A. Taylor, the second child, was born in San Francisco. After completing the grammar and high schools in San Francisco she finished her education at the University of California. She was married to W. A. Turner, an Oakland dentist. In the spring of 1898 they sailed north with the intent of prospecting in the Klondike goldfields. Hearing of good reports from the Atlin Lake district, in British Columbia, they changed their plans and went there. After spending the summer in locating some excellent claims, they returned to their home in Oakland, California, intending to return the following summer and work them. Mrs. Turner keenly enjoyed the rough life of the mines and endured the hardships of the trip as well as her husband. She left for the second trip in the best of health, but was taken ill with pneumonia and died on the way to Alaska.

Mrs. Taylor's son died young.

Her family record is as follows:

WILLIAM A. TREAT, b. Feb. 28, 1829, in Prospect, Me.; d. Sept. 23, 1855, in Springfield, Cal.

MARY E. DORE, b. Dec. 28, 1833, in Harmony, Me.; d. Jan. 22, 1872, in San Francisco.

2. MARY A. TAYLOR, b. Sept. 14, 1862, in Oakland, Cal.; d. Apr., 1899.

WILLIAM A. TURNER.

MARY A. TAYLOR.

Married Mar. 1, 1885, in San Francisco.

5. ANNA M. DORE.

Anna Maria Dore was born in Harmony. When her father moved to Wisconsin she went with him. She taught in the public schools of Princeton, Wisconsin, until after her father died. She then came to California and taught in the San Francisco schools for about thirty-five years. A few years ago she retired from the school department and built a home in Berkeley, California. Here she died December 28, 1901. The circumstances of her death were particularly sad. She had always lived alone, and, being somewhat isolated from her neighbors, no one was aware of her sickness until several days after her death.

6. JOHN S. DORE.

John Solomon Dore was born in Harmony. In 1850 he went to Princeton, Wisconsin, with his father. He was married in 1863 to Lucy J. Angel. In 1883 he came to California. He settled in Fresno County and planted a vineyard, upon which he has lived ever since. He has had eight children, of whom six are now living.

The eldest child, Clara, was married to J. J. Elwell. They lived in Fresno for a number of years and then moved to ———, where they still live. They have one daughter, Frances.

Edna Dore was married to James C. Hodges. They had two children. In 1899 her husband died. She married J. A. Ogborn in 1903.

Mary Dore was married to Henry V. Rudy, a Fresno rancher. They still reside in Fresno.

Ray and Jennie Dore are at present living in Fresno.

Ina Dore was married to George Hobbs. They live in Dinuba, Cal.

The record of John Dore's family is as follows:

OTHER DORES.

Another "Dore" family lived in Maine. There were three brothers living in Lebanon, named Benjamin, Henry, and Abijah. Benjamin Dore married a Miss Lord of Lebanon. The family moved to Alten, New Hampshire. Benjamin had a son, Ezra, who in turn had a son, Benjamin. He formerly lived in Lynn, Mass. He is married and at present lives at 77 Gainsboro Street, Boston. It is not known whether or not this family is related to the Dores of Athens.

James Dore lives in Newfields, Maine. He is a descendant of one of two brothers who were the original settlers in America bearing the name. He had a son born in Newfields in 1831. This son changed the spelling of the name to Dorr. He has a son, Dr. Charles Dorr, who is a practicing physician in South Hingham.
